

Harrison Fears Economic Collapse Might Occur if Reciprocal Program Ends

Says Trade Policy Is One of Greatest Methods to Promote Rational Relations

Pittman Opposes

Senator Says Practice Is Invalid and Allows No Ratification

Washington, March 25 (AP)—Senator Harrison (D., Miss.) opened Senate debate on extending the reciprocal trade program today with an appeal to his almost evenly divided colleagues that they retain the system lest an eventual world trade war threaten this country with "an economic collapse."

Abandonment of the policy of executive tariff-making, the chairman of the Senate finance committee asserted, would invite foreign fields and factories to vie "with each other and with us" as soon as peace returns abroad.

"Let no one be deceived as to the magnitude of that trade war," Harrison admonished.

A handful of noncommittal members held the balance of power on the House-approved measure to continue the far-reaching program another three years beyond June 12.

President Roosevelt has made the continuation proposal one of his key recommendations and Republicans have said they would make it a major campaign issue. Thus, it has come to be Congress' star show of the year and Senate orators on both sides were primed with arguments.

Greatest Influence

Harrison said he thought that the policy of extending to all nations which do not discriminate against American goods the same tariff reductions made in the separate trade agreements promised to become the "greatest influence to preserve and promote rational international trade and the maintenance and preservation of peace."

Senator Pittman (D., Nev.), leading off for opponents, said the program was unconstitutional because it does not provide for Senate ratification of trade agreements.

The agreements really are treaties, Pittman argued, and therefore should be subject to ratification by a vote of two-thirds of the Senate.

"It may seem a small matter at the present time to delegate to the President the power to make treaties without ratification by the Senate," he said, "but once established this precedent and those who fought our entry into the League of Nations and our adherence to the World Court may find they have no forum in which to discuss such agreements."

Harrison said in his speech: "If the policy written in this resolution is destroyed, if we as a government turn our backs upon it—a policy which we inaugurated—if we renounce this program, we throw to the winds an opportunity in the future to help the peoples of the world along rational, unselfish and just principles of international trade."

Harrison argued that partisanship should not enter into consideration of the legislation.

As the law stands, the reciprocal agreements are handled by the President and the state department without congressional action, but opponents contend in the Senate that they have a 50-50 chance of inserting an amendment to require Senate ratification of each agreement.

More to Easter

Hollywood, March 25 (AP)—There was more to Easter in the movie colony than the quite stylish dress parade on Hollywood boulevard. Such as: Penny (Blondie) Singleton's fractured kneecap and possibly broken ribs, received in an automobile accident. The applause, which disregarded instructions, accorded Kenny Baker after he sang "Ave Maria" in German at Hollywood Bowl's sunrise services, which drew many film elite. The fight, at about the same moment, of movie notables and others as officers staged a dawn gambling raid on two swank night spots on the "Sunset Strip," the Bacon and Sphinx Clubs.

Edouard Branly Is Dead at Age of 95

Invention of Coherer Led to Wireless Discovery; Radio No Joy to Him

EDOUARD BRANLY

Paris, March 25 (AP)—Edouard Branly, 95-year-old French physicist, whose invention of the coherer led Marconi to develop wireless, died last night without a radio in his Paris home.

"To think I had something to do with its invention," he used to say in expressing his disgust over use of radio for propaganda purposes. Edouard Branly was acknowledged in scientific circles as discoverer of how to detect and receive wireless impulses, although credit for harnessing them goes to Guglielmo Marconi.

When the Italian inventor in 1899 sent his first wireless telegram from England to France he transmitted this:

"M. Marconi sends M. Branly his respectful compliments by wireless telegraphy across the English Channel."

Foreign Purchases of Warplanes Helping Congress Economy Drive

Washington, March 25 (AP)—Foreign purchases of warplanes are helping the faltering congressional drive for economy by enabling the army to cut down on the acquisition of spare aircraft and engines.

Was disclosed today by members of the House military appropriations subcommittee at the same time that army officials announced the big job of storing up piles of "strategic materials"—ores, rubber, fibers—as "war insurance" was nearing completion. The House committee members said the army itself had recommended that the major proportion of 496 planes requested for reserve purposes be eliminated from a pending bill.

They explained that this country's aircraft productive capacity is almost triple what it was six months ago, when the army prepared its budget estimates for the year starting July 1. Thus, the air corps could replace its first line planes in one-third the time originally required, even if it had to start from scratch.

Actually, initial replacements could be made almost immediately, they said, by commandeering existing military planes the manufacturers had on hand for foreign governments.

Economy advocates counted heavily on the foreign buying to help them lop $50,000,000 off the army supply bill. In addition to savings on the reserve planes, they hoped to cut out most, if not all, of the $16,250,000 for so-called "educational orders" to familiarize private industry with munitions making. Other members expressed doubt, however, that those items alone would account for a $50,000,000 saving.

At the same time, officials reported they had obligated virtually all of $10,000,000 provided last year for purchasing eight "strategic materials" of war industry which the United States, though largely self-sufficient, must import.

They were listed by police as Albert Tannenbaum, 30, a former bodyguard for Jacob "Gurrah" (Continued on Page Two)

Senator Sheppard Says Garner Has 'Liberal Record'

Asks Friends Desist

Washington, March 25 (AP)—Secretary Hull was reported authoritatively today to be urging friends to refrain from boosting him for the Democratic Presidential nomination.

These friends expressed the opinion, however, that the 68-year-old cabinet member would feel it a party duty to accept the nomination if it should fall his way.

Well-advised informants said Hull determined some time ago not to seek any delegates to the Democratic national convention. He was described as believing that any political activity on his part would impair his usefulness as head of the state department.

This attitude is in line with the only public comment the secretary has made on the presidential question. He told reporters early in January that he had no presidential ambitions. An aide reinforced this stand by declaring that Hull wanted no politics intermingled in his department's affairs.

Several Congressmen, it was learned, have wanted to issue statements supporting Hull for the Democratic nomination, but the secretary has requested them to remain silent.

Informed persons said that Hull probably would consider it both a personal and a party obligation to support President Roosevelt if the latter should be nominated for a third term.

Speculation Active

Speculation about a ticket composed of Hull and James A. Farley has been active in Washington ever since Farley announced last week that his name would go before the Democratic convention.

Friends of Vice President Garner took cheer from Farley's declaration, because they argued that it showed opposition to the third term movement. They were pleased, too, with a radio address which Senator Sheppard (D-Tex) delivered Saturday night in behalf of Garner's candidacy.

Making the first major speech in behalf of Garner's campaign, Sheppard said that his fellow Texan had a consistent "liberal record" and had done much to further the New Deal program.

He recalled that Garner had released his delegates at the 1932 convention to Mr. Roosevelt, clearing the way for the latter's nomination. Because of Garner's 37 years' experience in Congress, Sheppard said, he doubted that anyone else is "better qualified for the presidency."

In the Republican field, this will be a busy week of campaigning. Addresses are listed tonight for Senator Taft (R-Ohio) in Philadelphia and Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) in Washington. Chairman Glenn Frank of the party's program committee will speak in St. Louis.

Thomas E. Dewey, who is opposing Vandenberg in the Wisconsin primary April 2, will tour that state late this week after speaking at St. Louis Wednesday and at Chicago Thursday.

Cahill 'Usurped' Board Authority, Behrens Declares

Director of Public Welfare Department Also Asserts Judge Confused Jail With City Home

A statement expressing the view that City Judge Matthew V. Cahill overstepped his authority in committing a vagrant to the city home was issued today by C. N. Behrens, director of the local Welfare Department.

The statement, in answer to one given last week by City Judge Cahill, also expresses the opinion that the aged man who was sent to the city home by the judge, should have been committed to jail.

The following is the reply of the Welfare Department to recent statements by Judge Cahill:

The Police Department last week arrested two men for selling, on the streets of this city, contraceptives and indecent literature consisting of pictures so filthy in nature as to be actually nauseous. Both men were strangers to Kingston and Ulster county. These men were brought before City Court and one of them was fined $55.00 and committed to jail for 10 days. The other man, named Joy, instead of being committed to jail also, was committed by the city judge to the city home, although both men appeared to be guilty of the same disgusting offense.

The city judge has power, under the law, to commit criminals and lawbreakers to the county jail, but he has no legal authority to commit them to the city home. The city home is an institution, supported by the taxpayers of Kingston, for the care of needy Kingston residents but it is not a jail for the accommodation of lawbreaking vagrants.

Judge Cahill, according to press reports, made a judicial pronouncement from the bench that Joy was entitled to and should receive relief. In doing this, Judge Cahill usurped the legal power and authority of the commissioners of public welfare, who alone, have this authority under the law. Joy, up to the time of his arrest, was employed. He worked for the man now in jail as a salesman of his nefarious wares. He is not and never was a resident of Kingston, nor a legal resident of New York state. He had never applied to the city welfare department for relief. Joy was in no sense an applicant for relief. Joy was a lawbreaker, and those who violate the law and are apprehended are usually committed to jail, but never committed to the city home.

Judge Cahill actually signed an order, committing Joy to the city home. There is no authority anywhere in the law to give a city judge the right to commit a lawbreaker to a welfare institution.

As soon as Joy was delivered to the city home by the police, he was asked if he had had luncheon. Upon replying in the negative, he was given dinner. He was then questioned thoroughly and he stated that he had been employed for the past seven years by the man now in jail; that he had spent these seven years in going from

New York Has Coldest Easter Day on Record

12-Degree Cold Is Easter Greeting Highest Reading of Day Is 24; Semblance of 'Parade' Is Held

Easter Sunday was ushered into Kingston with close to zero temperatures with the official city hall thermometer recording a low of 12 degrees. The cold, chilly weather gripped the city throughout the entire day, the official thermometer recording a high of 24 degrees that afternoon.

In all of the local churches appropriate Easter services were held with special Easter music by the choirs and an Easter message by the pastors.

According to a notation on the police blotter an "Easter" bunny was found dead in the road at East Chester and Lincoln streets early Sunday morning by Officer Reardon. Whether the bunny had met death by exposure to the extreme cold or had been struck by an automobile was not stated.

Miss Margaret Sykes, a state health department nurse assigned to duty to the Kingston health department, motored to her home in Oriskany Falls, near Utica, to spend the Easter holiday with her parents. Owing to the heavy snow she had a difficult time in getting through safely and was forced to leave her car there as the roads were blocked to traffic. She returned to Kingston by train.

The midwinter temperatures prevailing Easter Sunday and today gripped the city Friday night when the lowest temperature recorded by the official city thermometer at the city hall was 15 degrees, while the highest temperature recorded Saturday afternoon was 27 degrees. Sunday the low was 12 degrees with a high of 24 degrees that afternoon. This

Chilly Weather Extends From Montreal to Far South; New York State Hit Hard

(By The Associated Press)

The wintry weather that chilled Easter promenaders from Montreal to Dixie held over today with little relief in sight from icy winds and sub-freezing temperatures.

Central and northern New York state were particularly hard hit over the week-end as high winds piled up snow drifts, closing numerous roads and even affecting the railroads. The Delaware and Hudson Railroad express Laurentine from Montreal to New York, was freed after being stalled nine hours by snowdrifts near St. Edwards, Que. The train backed slowly toward Montreal for rerouting over the Canadian National to Rouses Point. It left there this morning, 15 hours behind schedule, for New York.

In the south, spring weather prevailed only in Florida and along the Gulf to New Orleans. Snow, ranging from one to eight inches in depth, extended from Arkansas across Tennessee into the Carolinas and down into north Georgia and Alabama.

New Orleans enjoyed 82-degree Easter weather, but the afternoon brought a chilly drizzle and north Louisiana and north Mississippi looked for colder weather.

New York city had the coldest Easter Sunday on record, but the usual thousands packed the churches and paraded on Fifth avenue, Lenox avenue in Harlem, and wherever else women were moved to display their new clothes.

Sub-freezing weather lessened the number of participants in Philadelphia's Easter parade, and forced indoors some dawn religious services, usually held outdoors. Raw, bitter winds swept over Pennsylvania and at Mt. Pocono the temperature dropped 2 below zero.

Norwegian Admiralty Protests Violation of Area by British Craft Over Week-end

Sailors Are Hurt

Three Ships Are Put Out of Commission, Two Are Injured

Copenhagen, March 25 (AP)—British warcraft in imposing force hovered on the fringe of Scandinavian territorial waters today, apparently under orders to stalk or pounce upon every German merchant ship en route to or from the blockaded Fatherland.

With three German ships knocked out in the past four days of intensified British pressure on Germany's outermost Scandinavian waters, one sunk by torpedo, one by shelling and the third aground—Norway and Denmark again felt the sharp squeeze of unceasing war at sea.

Two German sailors were wounded.

The Norwegian admiralty announced last night that a protest against violation of Norwegian waters by British warships had been delivered in London. An Oslo communique claimed two encroachments and said a third was under inquiry.

The latest success of the British blockaders was the sinking of the 2,189-ton freighter Edmund Hugo Stinnes, after the pounding of a submarine's gun. The ship was carrying coal from Hamburg to Copenhagen.

The Stinnes went down yesterday afternoon a few miles west of Skaggen, northernmost Denmark, at the Kattegat entrance of the Baltic—not far from where the 4,947-ton ore carrier Herderneim sank last Thursday night as the war's first reported merchant ship victim of a British submarine torpedo.

Another victim of the cat-and-mouse watch the British admiralty has posted along the western shores of Denmark and Norway was the 5,000-ton Ostpreussen, run aground yesterday with a cargo of coke after three days of harried cruising off the western Danish coast to dodge British warships.

The Ostpreussen, bound for Sweden, had been ordered to double back to Esbjerg, Denmark, to lie there out of reach of British submarines. Hugging the rugged shore to escape detection, she struck a rock and, with nine feet of water in her hold, was beached on the Jutland coast. The crew remained aboard.

The Edmund Hugo Stinnes likewise had received home radio orders to dodge back into Esbjerg. The ship had almost reached Skaggen at the time. Turning back the freighter ran afoul of a British submarine Saturday night.

Shells Submarine

The submarine shelled the vessel then, but it was not until yesterday afternoon that it went to the bottom, about three miles off the Danish shore.

Danish naval authorities sought to determine whether the ship actually had been attacked while within the three-mile territorial limit, but it was possible that she drifted shoreward during the night.

The official German news agency, DNB, asserted that the attack took place in Danish territorial waters.

Twenty crewmen reached the shore in two life boats. They reported that their captain had been taken by the British. Two of the men had been injured, one having a flesh wound in the arm, and the other having lost three fingers while attempting to lower a boat.

The British pressure on blockade runners in the North Sea and in the Skagerrak and Kattegat entrance to the Baltic still leaves untouched Germany's Baltic lifeline to Scandinavia, the route across the Baltic between Germany and Sweden's iron ore ports.

The narrow entrances to the Baltic, virtually impregnable to naval attack without violation of Danish or Swedish neutrality, stands as a barrier to any naval attempt to intercept Baltic shipping. Hence the British are forced to concentrate on Germany's outer Scandinavian lifeline.

In this connection, with the British charging that Norwegian and Danish territorial waters are a regular route for German merchant ships, Scandinavian neutrality is in a ticklish position.

Norway's present protest to London declared that on the morning of March 21 a German trawler sailed into Hordafjord and asked for Norwegian protection against a British torpedo boat sailing within the territorial limit.

Later the same day, according to the Oslo admiralty's outline, a Norwegian vessel was escorting a

Several Arraigned In Police Court

Six cases were brought to the attention of Judge Matthew V. Cahill in police court this morning.

Anthony Bezzaro, 23, of Highland, and Michael Augustine, 44, of 72 Ann street, both charged by Officer Kinch with failure to obey the command of an officer, were arrested Saturday. According to Officer Kinch both had double parked their cars. Augustine's case was set down for Tuesday, while Bezzaro was fined $5.

John Corcoran, Jr., 28, of 3 Post street, arrested on Jansen avenue on a charge of operating a car not equipped with adequate brakes, had his case held open and was directed to have repairs made to the brakes at once.

Francis Brueckner of West Hurley, charged with driving a car with inadequate brakes was fined $3 and directed to have the brakes made adequate.

Frank Colanino, 26, of Monroe, was fined $2 for operating a car with four adults riding in the front seat.

John W. Appel, Jr., 53, of Scarsdale, charged with passing a red traffic light, forfeited $5 cash bail when he failed to appear in court.

Violation Is Charged

Washington, March 25 (AP)—The Supreme court ruled today that the Ethyl Gasoline Corporation of New York had violated the Sherman anti-trust act by restricting sale of lead-treated gasoline to jobbers licensed by the corporation. Justice Stone delivered the decision that affirmed a ruling by the southern New York federal district court which enjoined the corporation from requiring jobbers to produce licenses in order to handle the product.

Airplane Stocks Were Features in Trading Saturday

Stocks of air transportation companies and airplane manufacturing concerns featured the trading on the Stock Exchange Saturday, seven of the 10 most active stocks being in this category. Of 24 issues making new highs for the year half a dozen of them were of this nature. Loft was a market leader and with dealings at 21,600 shares made a gain of 1 1/4 for the day. Volume was 392,470 shares against 478,970 week before. Outside of the issues mentioned the market generally followed the dull course, with narrow movements that has marked it since the first of the year. Industrials in the Dow-Jones averages were unchanged Saturday, while rails and utilities showed slight losses, the former being off .09 for the day and utilities losing .05.

For the week as a whole, with total transactions being 2,782,649 for the five business days, small gains were shown on averages compared with the previous Saturday's close. Industrials had a net advance of .97 point, to 146.73; rails gained .32 point, to 30.10; utilities were ahead .22, to 24.24.

A review of the chemical industry shows that in 1939 the combined earnings of 26 leading companies in this field totaled $135,468,816. This is about the same as these companies earned in 1929 and 60 per cent higher than earnings in 1938. However it still was under the total profit in 1937, the peak year, when earnings were $168,409,967.

The S. E. C. it is stated, is considering a rule which would make payments on common stock depend upon depreciation to an extent, so far as registered utility companies are concerned. Would bar disbursements unless companies follow the commission's suggestions.

Report of Anaconda Copper for 1939 shows earnings second largest since 1929. Total profit for the year was $20,236,552, equal to $2.33 a common share, compared with profit of $9,542,615, or $1.10 a share in 1938.

American officials have been informed by British trade authorities that the United Kingdom expects to curtail purchases of American cotton. Is a move further to conserve foreign exchange.

Expectations are that soon the ICC will take steps to end the 17 year old reversionary of the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railway. Likely will approve a reorganization plan which will divide the property into two new railroads, wipe out all of the present stock and almost all of the debt. The plan is said to be the most drastic ever proposed. Present holders of bonds totaling $4,286,000 would be given new stock worth about $1,500,000.

Columbia Gas & Electric Corp. reports net earnings of $12,083,222 in 1939 as against net of $10,230,747 in previous year, a gain of 5.8 per cent in power revenues on an increase of 12.9 per cent in electricity sales. Dividend action by the company awaits statement of definite profit regarding the company by the S. E. C.

British Warships Hunt Nazi Ships

German freighter when a British ship entered the territorial limit and signaled for the name of the German ship.

The Norwegians refused to give the name and ordered the British to stand off, the admiralty's communiqué said.

The Norwegian protest was the first to Great Britain since February 17, when a British destroyer invaded a Norwegian fjord to remove British captives from the German prison ship Altmark.

Will Meet Wednesday

The women's group of the Agudas Achim Synagogue will hold a regular meeting Wednesday at 8:15 p. m. in the Hebrew School on Post street.

New York, March 25 (AP)—Specialties, notably air transport company stocks, maintained their popularity in today's market.

Many leaders, at the same time, failed to get going and, near the final hour, prices were distinctly irregular. Dealings were small from the start, with transfers for the full proceedings at the rate of 600,000 shares.

The trading fraternity seemed to derive scant inspiration from either business news at home or war developments abroad and the inclination to keep "liquid" was pronounced in speculative quarters.

Bonds were just about steady with definite trends lacking in virtually all departments. Commodities were a shade uneven, European markets were still closed for Easter, reopening tomorrow.

Among the smattering of new highs for the year or longer in the stock list were those of American Airlines, Pan American Airways, National Aviation and Loft.

Receiving occasional support were Sperry, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, United Air Lines, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Santa Fe, Great Northern, Goodyear, Anaconda and Standard Oil of N. J.

Backward were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Western Union, du Pont, Union Carbide, Maynard, and American Smelting.

Up in the curb were Phoenix Securities and Master Electric. Without much rising animation were Pantepec, Electric Bond & Share and Cities Service.

Also His 'Blood Tag'

Chicago, March 25 (AP)—The identification disc worn by soldiers in the European war has become also a "blood tag."

Inscribed on the disc along with the soldier's name is his blood group, so that doctors can tell at a glance what kind of blood to give him, in case of injury, or whether his blood can be used for a transfusion to aid another.

Reports to the American Medical Association show that English and German troops, and probably French also, wear these tags.

Stravinsky Is Wed

Boston, March 25 (AP)—The noted Russian composer, Igor Stravinsky, 57, and Vera De Bossett, 35, a countrywoman whom he met 20 years ago, were honeymooning here today.

The couple revealed yesterday that they were married in Bedford two weeks ago. Stravinsky will be the Boston Symphony Orchestra guest conductor this week.

Concert April 3

The Kingston Cooperative Concert Association announced today that Lansing Hatfield, baritone, will be the featured soloist in a concert which will be held at the high school on April 3, at 8:30 o'clock.

O'Dwyer Desires Two Grand Juries

Shapiro, convicted racketeer, and Charles Workman, 30.

May Tell of Murder

Meanwhile, Brooklyn authorities continued to question Abe "Kid Twist" Reles, indicted for murder, who has reported "singing" in the hope of mercy.

The Daily News said Reles had decided to talk about the gangster slaying of Dutch Schultz—Arthur Flegenheimer—and his cronies on October 23, 1935.

In court, Tannenbaum, neatly dressed and tanned by the Florida sun, seemed at the "vagranity" charge throughout his arraignment. He has a record of six arrests and two convictions.

Workman's appearance contrasted sharply with Tannenbaum's. His hair was rumpled and his clothing wrinkled. Throughout the hearing he protested his innocence, saying he was a salesman.

At Monticello, Sullivan county, two state police investigators searched the vicinity of a concrete swimming pool yesterday at Rosemont Lodge, where the body of mob-victim Yoell Miller was believed to have been deposited in 1936. Heavy snow prevented a close inspection.

While this was in progress, State police Inspector Ernest Maynard left Monticello for Brooklyn to interview Reles, saying he would ask the latter to name the precise spot at which Miller's body was buried.

The Brooklyn disclosures thus far have indicated four persons were dumped in Sullivan county after mob "rubouts."

Deekelman and several Monticello officers plan to leave tomorrow for Los Angeles with an extradition warrant for Irving Cohen, Hollywood bit player, indicted in connection with the slaying of Walter Sage, whose body was dropped into Swan Lake in July, 1937.

Pageant Is Given By Church Group

Sunday evening a pageant drama, "The Holy Sepulchre," written by Lyman R. Bayard, was presented at the First Dutch Reformed Church. The church was entirely filled when the inspiring Easter pageant depicting the events of Passion Week from Good Friday through the first Easter Sunday was presented under the direction of the Rev. and Mrs. Arthur E. Oudemool with W. Whitely Fredenburgh, organist, in charge of the music.

The cast made up of 26 speaking parts was supported by a choir of 18 voices. Throughout the pageant the characters were attired in costumes of authentic Biblical design. At the conclusion of the pageant drama, an epilogue which takes place years after the resurrection, was portrayed by Caroline McCreery as Mary Magdalene. This epilogue in which she reviewed the happenings of the pageant depicted in symbolism what the resurrection has meant down through the ages.

Very elaborate lighting effects, in charge of Henry Page, were used throughout the pageant. Stage work was in charge of Charles Goble, William Hendricks, Clifford Miller and Benson Miller.

The cast of characters:

Joseph of Arimathea	Robert Soper
Mary Magdalene	Caroline McCreery
The Other Mary	Caroline Little
Nicodemus	Jack St. John
Simeon	Richard Roth
First Priest	Bernard Miller
Second Priest	Clifford Miller
First Guard	John Mack
Second Guard	Richard Van Kleek
Third Guard	James Little
Fourth Guard	Fred Supplies
Angel of the Lord	Angela
The Second Angel	John Warren
Salome	Edna Davis
John	Donald Everet
John	Donald Burgher
Mary, Mother of Jesus	Harriet St. John
Thomas	Harry St. Leger
Matthew	Robert Supplies
Isai	John Stokette
Angel with Circle	Ruth Boerker
Angel with Banner	Nan Molyneux
Angel with Fruits	Gloria Post
Angel with Book	Irene Van Hovenburgh
Angel with Ship	Barbara Dawe
Angel with Lights	Maryann Davis
Angel with Lamp	Audrey Britcliffe
Angel with Branch	Ruth Herdman
Angel with Palm	Janet Boerker

The Angel Chorus was composed of: Joan Craig, Jean Brigham, Janet Ostrander, Frances Ensign, Jean Molyneux, Hilda Davis, Barbara Wheeler, Elaine Rich, and Virginia Lahl.

Supporting this chorus was Mrs. Johnston, Mrs. Doty, Mr. Raible, Mr. Miller, Leo Boice, Miss Ingalls, Miss Osterhout, Mr. Ten Hagen and Mrs. Edson.

Edouard Branly Is Dead at Age of 95

Channel, this splendid achievement being due in part to the remarkable work of M. Branly.

Branly's discovery was that of the principle of the coherer, one of the first successful devices used as a detector of wireless signals. He got his first inkling of it in 1885 rather accidentally but it was six years later before he demonstrated it before the French Academy of Science and thereby won membership in that body.

Used Filings

His demonstrating apparatus consisted of a glass tube filled with loose iron filings, a galvanometer and an electric arc of a closed circuit. Electric sparks were produced 25 yards away and the current, causing the filings to adhere together, brought a deviation in the galvanometer. By tapping the tube he knocked the filings apart and cut the current, making the tube ready for the next spark.

He was studying medicine when he stumbled upon this principle. Finding that his salary as a research physicist at the Institut Catholique in Paris was insufficient for his needs, he decided to become a practicing physician. This was in the early '80's when M. Branly was already of middle age.

Formed of Neurons

Testing different theories as to how nerves carry messages from the skin to the brain and back again, he learned that nerves are not continuous fibres, but formed of neurons, massed closely but not necessarily touching. Application of this fact to physics gave him ultimately the coherer.

To reach that stage, however, he first proved that instead of all bodies being either conductors or non-conductors of electricity, there was a third class whose conductivity was intermittent, the most widely known example being Galena (sulphate of lead) which was the actuating substance in the "cat whisker" crystal sets

State Department Says Dog Was Rabid; Local Officials Request Help

The stray white poodle dog that has been under observation for signs of rabies in the city's dog pound on Flatbush avenue, died Friday at the city pound, and the head was sent to the state health department at Albany to ascertain if the dog was afflicted with rabies.

Dr. Hollis Ingraham, in charge of the state district health office here, informed Mayor C. J. Heislman today that the tests made in Albany had shown that it was a positive case of rabies.

Dog Warden Andrew Griffin as he left his home on West Pierpont street the other morning found the stray dog near his home, and seized the animal and removed him to the dog pound. The dog acted so queerly that it was thought best to keep him under observation to determine if the animal had rabies.

The dog when seized by the dog warden had no collar or tag, and the city authorities are anxious to know if any dog owner in the city had owned the animal. If so the owner is asked to get in touch with either the mayor, the dog warden or the health department at once.

It is thought, however, that the animal is a stray who had been bitten by a dog in southern Ulster county where several townships are under a rabies quarantine. So far as the dog warden or the city authorities could determine today the animal had not bitten any one in the city nor had it attacked any other dog in the city.

The city authorities say the dog was picked up by the dog warden on Sunday, March 17, died on March 21, and the head was sent to Albany on Friday, March 22.

Cahill 'Usurped' Board Authority, Behrens Declares

city to city selling the contraceptives and indecent literature in violation of the law, thereby corrupting the morals of youth wherever he had gone. He stated that he had no home or legal residence. He was therefore classified as a vagrant. It is the policy of the welfare department not to accept vagrants for relief. The reason is very plain. Local records indicate that between 1,500 and 1,800 vagrants pass through Kingston annually. Granting relief to this army would impose an unjust and unreasonable burden on the local taxpayer and Kingston would be widely advertised as a good home center, thereby attracting vagrants to Kingston by the thousands.

Judge Cahill, according to the press, stated that the reason this lawbreaker was not received with open arms at the city home, in accordance with the judge's commitment, was because Joy lacked influence. In making this statement, Judge Cahill impugns the official acts of Commissioners Hiltobrant, Grogan and Rowe and the staff of the welfare department. The best proof of the integrity of the welfare department is in the fact that for more than six years assistance has been granted to thousands of local families and never has the charge been made that any person, actually in need and without legal resources, has required influence to obtain assistance. That fact is recognized by the State Department of Social Welfare and by the citizens of Kingston generally. We have cared for, and will continue to care for, all distressed citizens of Kingston. But we refuse to care for lawbreakers such as Joy, who is not and never has been a resident of Kingston, and who has never applied to us for relief.

Joy was last seen Friday morning on Albany avenue, thumbing his way northward. An account of Judge Cahill's so-called "flying" of the welfare department appeared on the front page of your newspaper, topped with large headlines. In fairness to the Welfare Department, we ask that this statement be given equal prominence.

About the Folks

Miss Mabel Comerford spent Easter Sunday in New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. John Murphy and son, Jack, of Teaneck, N. J., are spending their Easter vacation with Mrs. Murphy's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gregory of 81 Elmendorf street.

Curfew was introduced in England about the year 1068.

A ducking stool was used to punish shrews in England in 1745.

Improper License Plates

Frank Jones, 28, of the Avalon, was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Winne on a charge of driving a car with improper license plates. Arraigned before Justice Siemsen of Sawkill, Jones demanded a hearing and the justice set the case down for Tuesday at 7 p. m. The officer charged that Jones was driving his '31 Chevrolet sedan on Route 28 equipped with 1938 license plates.

Uses Big Name

Washington, March 25 (AP)—The Dies committee, resuming hearings on un-American activities, heard from a Pittsburgh witness today that one of his fellow Communists used "Franklin D. Roosevelt" as his party pseudonym. Communists use names other than their own, said the witness, James H. Dolson, because of the danger that their party might be outlawed. Also, he said, there is job discrimination against known Communists.

Our Growing Population

The following births have been reported to the Board of Health: Mr. and Mrs. Eugene E. Battelle, Jr., of Leonia, N. J., a son, Anthony Eugene, in Kingston Hospital.

N.B.A. Ousts Lou

Washington, March 25 (AP)—The National Boxing Association today withdrew recognition of Lou Ambers as lightweight champion of the world on the ground that he had not defended his title within the six months required by the association. Lt. Col. Harvey L. Miller, president of the association, said the association would recognize as champion the winner of the forthcoming Davy Day-Sammy Angott fight in Chicago.

Police Chief Given Power To Discipline Department

A change of rules governing penalties for local patrolmen in the event of any irregularities or violations in the course of their duty empowers the local police chief to act directly on most minor infractions, Mayor Heislman announced today.

The police board voted at its recent meeting to allow the chief to impose fines upon officers amounting to as much as three days' pay for certain violations of department rules. Any violation which would call for a suspension of greater penalty is still left for action of the board.

An officer now found away from his post or committing a similar infraction of the rules may now be fined directly by the chief who will later report his action to the police board for its sanction.

The amount of the fine, which under this new ruling, is not to exceed three days' pay, will go toward the local pension fund.

Tax Held Invalid

Washington, March 25 (AP)—New York city's two per cent sales tax was held unconstitutional by the Supreme Court today as applied to fuel oil sold by the Gulf Oil Corporation for use on outgoing European liners. Justice Stone delivered the decision holding that "the state tax in the circumstances must fail as an infringement of the congressional regulation of the commerce." A similar case involving the validity of the sales tax as applied to fuel oil purchased by the French Line for use on outgoing European liners, was returned to New York state courts for a decision on constitutional questions relating to foreign commerce.

Is Wed Sunday

Miss Charlotte M. Larkin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Larkin, was married in St. Joseph's Church Sunday to John Cutler, son of Eli Cutler, by the Rev. Edmund Burke. The bridesmaid was Dorothy Scott and the best man Frank J. Sohn. The bride was dressed in crepe de museline and wore a crown veil of pearls and orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of Easter lilies. The bridesmaid was attired in an Albee blue princess dress and carried pink rose buds. After the ceremony a reception followed at the home of the bride's parents. On their return from a short honeymoon the newlyweds will reside at 72 Cedar street.

Masonic District Meeting Is Slated For Saugerties

The annual Greene-Ulster Masonic District convention will be held this year in the Masonic Temple in Saugerties, starting at 1:30 o'clock Monday afternoon, April 1, when Masons from the district will be present representing every lodge in the district.

The convention will be under the supervision of Right Worthy Henry G. Meacham, grand lecturer of the Grand Lodge of Masons in the state of New York, assisted by Valentine W. Morrow, assistant grand lecturer, and Arthur D. Lamb, deputy grand master of the district.

At the afternoon session the Fellowship and Master Mason degrees will be exemplified, to be followed at 7:30 o'clock that evening by the degree of Entered Apprentice.

A testimonial dinner to the grand lecturer will be served by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Congregational Church at Mechanics' Hall in Saugerties at 6 o'clock that evening.

Every year the convention brings out a large delegation from each of the 14 lodges in the district, and it is expected that the attendance this year will prove a banner one.

All Master Masons, including sojourning brethren, are invited to attend the convention.

Canada's population is 10,376,000.

WELLES'S EARFUL

Leaving for home, Sumner Welles, the President's special envoy to Europe, talked out loud at last. He said:

"In order to allay the flood of rumors about my mission, I wish to state categorically that I have not received any peace plan or proposals from any belligerent or from any other government; that I have not conveyed any such proposals to any belligerent, nor to any other government; nor am I bringing back to the President any such proposal."

In short, Welles didn't go over to settle the war, and hasn't settled it, and isn't now trying to settle it. Apparently he just went over to listen. And from the length of time he spent there, and the number of statesmen who apparently wanted to see him, and his skittering back and forth from capital to capital, he must have got an earful. All of which will be at the disposal of his boss when he reaches Washington.

The United States government should now be in better position to understand the European situation and to act intelligently in foreign affairs in a very delicate and troubled time.

Certain things, however, in Mr. Welles's trip have not been explained. Important statesmen in European capitals seem to have utilized him as a confidential messenger. Personally and unofficially he may have helped in important negotiations—perhaps regarding peace. But if so, the facts may not come out for years.

FRENCH STABILITY

It would be easy for Americans, with our conservative and slow-moving methods of government, to misunderstand the French. We are inclined, anyway, to regard Frenchmen as excitable and unstable generally, because they have a way of speaking that seems flighty and emotional to our more phlegmatic race. And they do seem uncertain, even frivolous, in their usual methods of government. Their premiers are always changing, their cabinets always collapsing. The average tenure of a French government is about six months.

It looked especially bad, and even frightening, for the Daladier government to "fall" at a critical time like this. But it would be a big mistake to imagine that the country is shaken and the national authority collapsing in the face of foreign peril. President Le Brun, whose functions are much like those of the King in England, simply exercises his authority, gets another premier to organize another cabinet, swears in the new officials, and Parliament settles down to business and the political and military systems carry on as usual. The army stands firm through such political tremors, the bureaucracy operates as usual, and any foreign notion of revolution or collapse is merely wishful thinking.

Hitler, at any rate, cannot get much satisfaction from it. The upset seems to have been caused not by popular opposition to the war but by a public feeling, shared by the army, that France wasn't doing enough fighting. They want war.

FINLAND PREPARES AGAIN

With her crushing war of self-defense just ended, with a vast task of reconstruction and with many of her dead still unburied, Finland takes up her military burden again. She has no faith in Russia's sworn promises and expects no peace. The latest word from Helsinki is that a renewal of the war with Russia is expected in six months. The government is already forming plans and ordering military supplies for that next war. The legation at Washington has been instructed to continue negotiations and procure shipments of orders not yet delivered.

The Moscow government simply strengthens this Finnish belief when it announces that Russia will consider such a defensive alliance as the Finns, Swedes and Norwegians have been planning as a hostile move "aimed at the U.S.S.R." Goliath, it seems, is mortally afraid of David again, even when the former is in full armor and the latter has in comparison only his sling and pebble.

Will the Scandinavian nations now renounce this alliance? It is a hard choice. But they may decide that they would be in greater peril separated than united. Sooner or later, all three will probably have to fight for their lives anyway.

NO HELP FROM COSMIC RAY

Anybody who was thinking of hitching his power equipment to a cosmic ray would better start looking for another source of energy. Dr. Robert A. Millikan, one of the country's cosmic ray authorities, came back recently from a research trip in equatorial regions with the sad news that such rays would never be effectively harnessed for practical use.

Cosmic rays are perhaps 1,000 times as powerful as the strongest radiation produced by atomic explosions in laboratories, but they hardly ever get to the earth's surface with their full strength. They could not be relied on for a steady flow of energy.

It seems these rays have to buck too much interference as they approach the earth. The earth itself is a huge magnet and its atmosphere is alive with magnetic lines running between the north and south poles.

We're not terribly disappointed. We weren't really sold on the helpfulness of the cosmic ray, anyway. It was a little terrifying, and didn't seem like a force that could be taken into the home or factory without a lot of safeguards.

More realism: Britain quits blowing up the enemy oratorically and starts doing it with bombs.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)
 FRESHNESS IN YOUR ROOM

In a large university building just completed, I felt that the odors from gymnasium and locker room were not being removed properly despite the fact that this building, costing hundreds of thousands of dollars, had a double-fan system. I called in a friend, a heating engineer, who with a little device that measures the movement of air, found that while the air was coming in properly, the switch of the exhaust fan had never been connected.

There can be no real ventilation, despite the size and height of rooms, if provision is not made for "moving" the air. Even warm air that has not been changed for a half hour or more can be made fit to breathe by the movement of electric fans which stir up the air about you and allow air from a more distant part (that you have not been using—breathing in and out) to come and surround you.

Among the requirements for a pleasant and invigorating environment, Drs. T. Bedford and C. G. Warner, in Journal of Hygiene, London, mention the following:

1. A room should be as cool as the individual finds comfortable, since freshness tends to increase as the temperature of the room goes down.
2. There should be adequate air movement, air moving at the rate of about 30 feet per minute.
3. The humidity or moisture in the air should be 70 or less.
4. The average temperature of the walls and other solid surroundings should not be much lower than that of the air; in fact it should be warmer. The combination of cold walls and warm air often causes a feeling of stuffiness.
5. The air at head level should not be distinctly warmer than that near the floor and the heads of the occupants should not be exposed to excessive radiant heat.
6. The air should be free from objectionable odors.

In brief, then, a cool room means more "freshness," air should always be in motion to break up the "envelope" of used air about you; the humidity or air moisture should be about 70 per cent; and air at head level should not be much warmer than at the floor level.

Twenty and Ten Years Ago

March 24, 1920.—After tugs had broken a channel through the ice fields in the Hudson river, the ferry Transport made its first trip of the season.

The community chest plan for raising money for various institutions in the city, was adopted at a meeting called by Mayor Barclay.

March 25, 1920.—Only one bid, that of Terry & Tench Company for $637,124, received for building the Rondout Creek Bridge. The bid was $20,000 below the engineers' estimate.

Ice in Hudson river was still holding fast. Charles H. Wadsworth died of a heart attack. Death of Harry S. Gage of Hasbrouck avenue. Thomas F. Noble died at his home on Newkirk avenue.

March 24, 1930.—Planned to shortly begin alterations to the Up-to-Date Company's store building on Wall street.

Abram W. Garabrant of Prospect street died. Supervisor Eugene Van Wagenen of New Paltz died in the Kingston Hospital.

Death of Lorin S. Wilkoff of Stone Ridge in the Benedictine Hospital.

Mrs. William Bush died in High Falls. Death of Mrs. John Ramming of Henry street. Mrs. David Kelly died at her home in Wittenberg.

March 25, 1930.—City Bowling League held third annual meeting and banquet. Peter Keresman was re-elected president of the league.

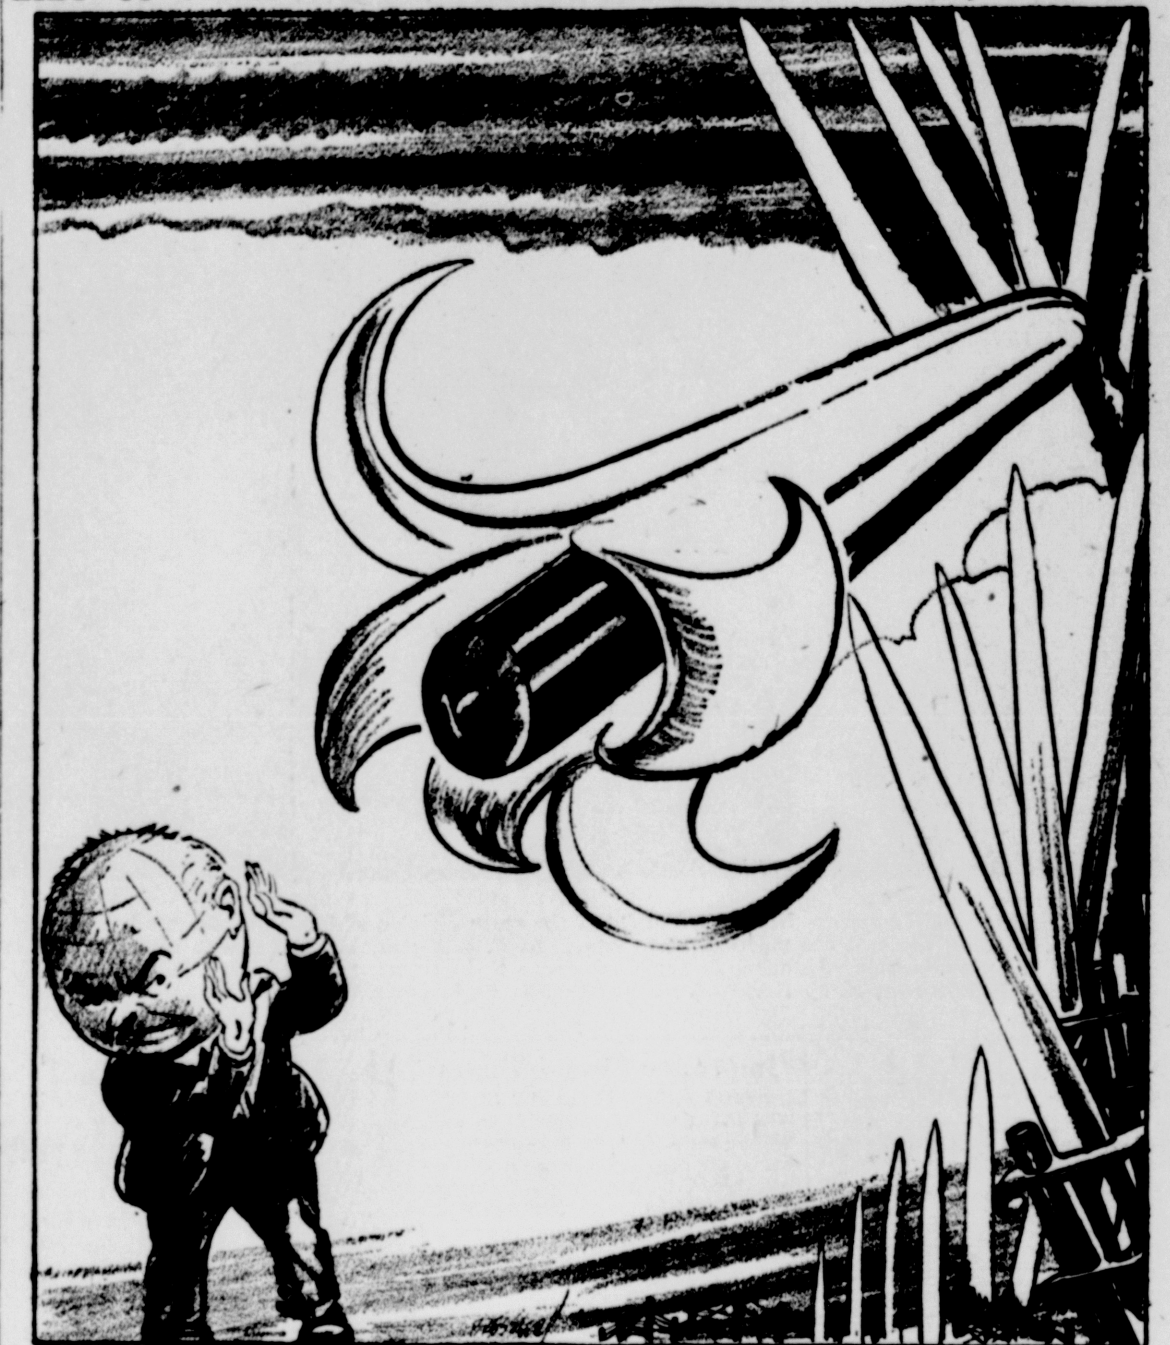

Milk dealers of city met and organized the Kingston Milk Dealers' Association with John Beatty as president.

Frank Davis died in his home in Shady. Death of Mrs. Albert Wolf at her home here.

The lowest temperature recorded by The Freeman thermometer during the night was 36 degrees.

A heavier schedule of maximum penalties, to put teeth in the law, is one of the ways the new Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act differs from the old law. For certain offenses, fines up to $200—with no provision for jail sentence—were the limit under the old law on a first offense. On subsequent convictions the old law permitted fines only up to $300 with or without jail sentence of not more than one year. For the same offenses, the new law provides for maximum fines of $1,000—with or without a maximum of one year imprisonment—upon the first offense. In the case of second offenses the maximum fine is stepped up to $10,000, with or without imprisonment up to three years. Even while the legislation was pending, the Food and Drug Administration observed that many Federal judges were making penalties more severe under the old limitations and were less likely to let violators off with nominal fines. In some courts heavy penalties have become the rule, followed often by suspension of sentence during good behavior.

LILY OF MARS!

ACCORD

Accord, March 25.—Warren Lawrence, Jr., student at Springfield College, has been spending his spring vacation at his home.

Miss Sadie Rider, who has been ill at the home of Mrs. J. Hartley Tanner with the measles, is able to be out again.

Mrs. Hartley R. Tanner, Jr., has been confined to her home with chicken pox.

Miss Nellie Davenport and Mrs. Helen Anderson are enjoying a motor trip to Melbourne, Fla., where they will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chandler Young.

Percy Barley is ill at his home. The annual meeting of the plot holders of the Accord rural cemetery was held at the office of William Anderson at Accord Friday, March 22. Percy W. Gazlay and Oscar Coddington were re-elected trustees for three years to succeed themselves. This was followed by the annual trustees meeting and the following officers were elected: President, John L. Schoonmaker; vice president, Lewis H. Miller; secretary and treasurer, Percy W. Gazlay. Miss Daisy L. Rider was appointed to handle assessment notices and collections. Jason Smith will be the care taker.

Pierce Palmer and Donald Schoonmaker, students at New Paltz Normal School, are spending their Easter vacation at their homes.

The Kerhonkson high school students and Accord grade school pupils are enjoying their Easter vacation.

Accord grade school will reopen on Monday, April 1. At this time the primary teachers are: Van Kleek, who will start a beginner's class. All those wishing to attend school this spring are urged to join this class.

Several from this place attended the Dumond-Hutchins wedding held in the High Falls Reformed Church on Friday, March 22, at noon.

The Accord Methodist Church will give an entertainment at 8 o'clock in the church hall, March 28, at which time Miss Carolyn Pinzato, the Ulster county ventriloquist with her Charlie McCarthy called "Tommy" will entertain. Also on the program will be special musical numbers, one of which will be several numbers by Tim Conway, the silver voice tenor of radio fame.

Flashes of Life
Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Chipmunk-y Business
 French Lick, Ind.—Chipmunks delayed the start of the French Lick Springs Hotel's Easter egg hunt.

They stole the eggs for the kids, and attendants had to put out more.

Hours later the little animals were found chattering over bright-covered eggshells.

Helping Hand
 Pittsburgh.—Fight Promoter Jake Mintz put up $1,000 bail for a youth charged with attempting to rob him.

"No hard feelings," he explained. "I promised his mother I would get him out of jail for Easter."

Then, as an afterthought: "Besides, the kid might turn out to be a good light-heavyweight."

Peaceful
 Portland, Ore.—J. J. Hague, liquor administrator, reported to the state liquor commission "the policing problem is getting easier every year" at Portland Pacific Coast League ball games.

"If the crowds keep getting smaller it'll be a cinch," he said. Portland finished in the cellar last year.

The commission denied an application to sell bottled beer in the stands.

Conscience Fund
 Kimmunity, Ill.—A passenger who rode a Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railroad passenger train three times between Kimmunity and Salem, Ill., paid his $1.08 fare after worrying about it for 20 years.

He explained that there was no ticket agent where he boarded the train and the conductor didn't get around to collect. Railroad officials thumbed through old time-tables and found that the fare for the 10-mile trip at that time was 36 cents.

Stalled in Mexico
 Guadalajara, Mexico, March 25 (AP)—A gasoline shortage, attributed to the inability of the Mexican National Railways to distribute the fuel, stalled hundreds of automobiles and trucks here today.

Today in Washington

Federal Communications Commission Has Joined Those Usurping Power and More Unemployment Follows

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, March 25.—Another governmental commission has joined the wave of arbitrariness and usurpation of power which has swept Washington lately. This time it is the Federal Communications Commission which has exceeded its powers and gone beyond the law. And this time, too, a big industry has been struck down with the inevitable result that more unemployment will follow.

The Federal Communications Commission was empowered by Congress to allocate wave lengths for broadcasting and for television, but it was never given any power or control over the sale or merchandising of receiving sets. It now seeks to grab that control. In fact, if its present order is not upset by the courts the F. C. C. will exercise complete control next over what the owners of radio sets may or may not do. There is as much legal justification for what the F. C. C. has just done to kill off the radio television—a pioneer industry in which millions have been spent in research—as there is for telling people what programs they may listen to with their receiving sets.

Encouraged perhaps by the liberties and license given governmental commissions by the Supreme Court, now controlled by five New Deal appointees, the Federal Communications Commission has really reached out for power over the whole television industry. The theory which Congress had in mind in creating the F. C. C. was that mechanical interference in the use of one wave length as against another and purely technical collisions would be avoided by governmental supervision. But the only man on the commission who knows anything about technical problems, former Commander Craven of the United States Navy, dissented on the latest F. C. C. edict, so all technical requirements were doubtless met.

What is most surprising, however, is not so much the decree ordering that the development of television in effect be suspended, but the manner of its issuance. Instead of giving a hearing to the interested parties, or any previous notification, the F. C. C. in a sudden decision injured the good will of a leading company which has spent millions in research and development. The Logan-Walter bill now pending before Congress is designed precisely to prevent governmental commissions from doing what the F. C. C. has done.

This latest abuse of power will give further ammunition to the advocates of that measure when it shortly comes before the House of Representatives for a vote.

What really is needed is a congressional investigation of the F. C. C. in its entirety to determine the extent to which the present law is being distorted. The F. C. C., for instance, declared it has authority over radio program content and it bases that on the vague phraseology of the law "public interest, convenience and necessity" which were never intended by Congress to cover anything but the mechanical problems involved in allocating wave lengths. Despite the fact that Congress has written a specific prohibition of censorship, the F. C. C., through the public utterances of its members, claims the right to pass on program content in renewing licenses, so that the broadcasting industry is under the thumb of a governmental commission.

In the case of television, the usurpation of power has gone further than in the case of radio.

There has been much talk of "idle men and idle money." Television is a new industry. Some persons familiar with the recent inventions think an industry is about to be built that will attract much capital and afford much employment. Radio broadcasting could never have been brought to its present stage if a governmental commission had insisted first on passing on what is or is not the right kind of a receiving set or what the sets should cost or who should have them or how they might be used.

The actual order of the F. C. C. refers to permission previously granted for commercial sponsorship of television after September 1 next. But the Radio Corporation of America for instance, which has developed the latest technique in television was not going to furnish commercial programs for the setting anyway and was merely getting ready to set its own expense, to handle the programs for the public in limited areas.

Europe has had television for three years. America has been getting ready to push ahead of what Europe has done, but the Federal Communications Commission has imposed its influence so as to establish the precedent of its alleged power over the merchandising of receiving sets.

Congress never delegated such authority to the F. C. C., but assumption of power is the habit of governmental commissions nowadays. Congress has not yet waked up to the fact that it is no longer the law-making body. The F. C. C. now must be added to the S. E. C. and the labor board as having transgressed the powers of Congress in interpretation of statutory authority.

PLATTEKILL

Plattekill, March 25.—The annual election of officers of the Plattekill Fire Department will be held Thursday evening, March 28.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Carpenter and son, Roland, were among guests entertained at Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Lauber's home in Newburgh recently.

Mrs. Myron Coons led a discussion of "Family Life" at the current meeting of the Modena Home Bureau unit held Thursday afternoon in the Clintondale Grange Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Powell of New Hurley visited Mrs. Martha Whitmore recently.

Edward Neuwirth and John Odell attended the regular meeting of the Volunteer Firemen's Association of Ulster county which was held in New Paltz Tuesday evening.

Many local people attended the P-T-A. meeting which was held Monday evening in the auditorium of the Wallkill High School. The Rev. La Verne C. Dibble, pastor of the Plattekill Methodist Church, led the round table discussion relating to problems and conditions of the school body.

Men's Club to Meet

Trinity Lutheran Men's Club will hold its regular monthly meeting in the church assembly rooms, corner Spring and Hoad streets, Tuesday evening, March 26, at 7:30 o'clock. After a short business meeting the members will proceed to the Church of the Redeemer, corner Wurts and Rogers street, where they will be the guests of the Men's Club of that church.

The Rev. Paul M. Young will be guest speaker for this occasion and it is hoped that every member of Trinity Lutheran Men's Club will make a special effort to be present.

High Rider

Lincoln, Neb.—William Campbell wants to be transferred from the state highway patrol to the motor vehicle or truck division. He put his reason tersely but eloquently in a letter to his superiors:

"I like my job very well, but I am six feet five inches tall and they want me to ride a motorcycle. Can you blame me for wanting to make the change?"

Mr. and Mrs. Wintish Report South Was Cold

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wintish returned Wednesday to their home on the Brabant Road after spending several months at their winter place in Lakeland, Fla. They report that the weather was cold during the entire four and a half months they spent at Lakeland.

Some of the farmers in their locality tried to save their plants by covering them with paper and the like, they reported, but without success as the temperature dropped so low that the protection was of no avail. At the beginning of the week in which they started north strawberries were just beginning to bear, after blossoms had been frozen off several times.

Grumme Buys Blinds Business

Harold Grumme of Glenford has purchased the Kingston Venetian Blind Co., now located at 40 Thomas street, of L. P. Fennelly, who has conducted the business for the past two years. Mr. Grumme, with Harold Francis, now of New York city, established the business three years ago, with the plant at 426 Washington avenue. The plant was moved to the larger quarters on Thomas street shortly after the business was purchased by Harry G. LaMothe and Mr. Fennelly in March, 1938. Mr. LaMothe retired from the business a year ago. Mr. Grumme remained with the new company. Negotiations for the transfer of ownership had been going on for some time, and were completed Friday. Mr. Grumme is making plans for the expansion of production and distribution of the Kingston blind.

Stamp Group to Meet

The Dutchess Philatelic Society invites all collectors to come and meet their collector friends in Poughkeepsie at the Hotel Campbell to trade, buy, sell, swap or just talk, see and hear about stamps Saturday, April 20, from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. As an additional attraction, E. N. Sampson of Stratford, Conn., will show and talk on "Western Express Routes," their covers, franks and history.

Back to Georgia

Richard Gray Gallogly, scion of a prominent Georgia family, gets a kiss from his pretty wife at Dallas, Texas, jail, before being taken back to Georgia, where he fled from prison six months ago. He is serving a life term in connection with two murder cases in which he said he pleaded guilty to have a companion. He had appealed to Texas officials to block extradition to Georgia.

Local Young Man Finishes Primary Aviation Course

James E. Gumaer, Jr., of this city, was graduated Friday at the Spartan School of Aeronautics, Tulsa, Okla., according to word received today from that school. He was a member of the class taking the Air Corps Primary Training Course.

The local young man has been at the training school for 12 weeks and has completed what is known as the primary stage of instruction.

This consists of 65 hours of flying in air corps training airplanes and over 200 hours of classroom instruction in such ground subjects as navigation, meteorology, theory of flight and other allied subjects required of first-class military pilots. Of the 89 who came here on December 30 for this course, only 30 were graduated. These 30 have been able to meet the high standard of performance required by the United States Army Air Corps for its military pilots.

They and their graduating companions will now proceed to Randolph Field, known as the "West Point of the Air," to receive an additional 12 weeks' training and if successful there will then go to Kelly Field, also near San Antonio for the final 12 weeks of advanced training.

Should he successfully complete all his training, the young man will then be appointed a second lieutenant in the Air Corps Reserve, will be given his "Wings," and the rating of Military Airplane Pilot.

Every six weeks, classes of young men 400 strong are entering Spartan School of Aeronautics and eight other commercial aviation schools that have been selected to co-operate with the United States Army Air Corps in the primary flight training of Flying Cadets.

Her 108th Birthday

Seneca Falls, N. Y., March 25 (AP).—Mrs. Ann Sheridan observes her 108th birthday in bed today—under protest. Her physician said she had been kept quiet several weeks "because of infirmities of old age." Mrs. Sheridan commented, "I have always been a hard working woman, and it doesn't seem right to have people waiting on me all the time."

YOUNG MOTHER CRIES AT INQUEST

Mrs. Aino Orgo Tossavainen, 25, cries in Chicago at an inquest when a coroner's jury recommended that she be held for the grand jury on charges of slaying Mrs. Mabel Buchanan, 42, a welfare worker, who had custody of her daughter. Attorney Robert E. Romano (right) offers her a glass of water.

Sum of $39,816 Is Paid Locally As Job Benefits

Kenneth A. Simpson, manager of the Kingston office of the New York State Employment Service, has received a report issued by Industrial Commissioner Frieda S. Miller that during February, unemployment insurance benefits amounted to $6,883,775 in the form of 552,677 individual checks. Compared with the January figures of $7,489,754 in the form of 597,719 individual checks, the February data represent decreases of eight per cent in the total amount of benefits paid and eight per cent in the number of checks issued. The average check for a single week of unemployment was $11.85 in February as compared with $11.91 for January and December.

February payments for the Kingston employment office amounted to $38,816.00 in the form of 3,420 individual checks to unemployed persons formerly holding jobs in covered employment. The average benefit payment for a single week of unemployment in the Kingston area was $11.24.

The local offices had 190,052 claims in the "active insurance file" during the week ended February 23, 1940, a decrease of 14 per cent from the number during the week ended January 28, 1940. These included claims filed by 130,410 unemployed workers, who were receiving benefits, 29,342 who were not yet entitled to benefits under the waiting-period provisions of the law, and 7,026 whose claims were being adjusted. The balance in the unemployment insurance funds amounted to $195,265,619 at the end of February as compared to $191,680,387 available on January 31.

GRANGE NEWS

Plattekill Grange
Plattekill, March 25.—Members of the Milton Grange were guests of the Plattekill Grangers on Saturday evening, when Mrs. Eunice Gervais, lecturer of the Milton Grange, was in charge of the evening's program. The subject of "Youth and the Past" was featured in connection with the series of meetings scheduled to be held in Ulster county in compliance with the state lecturer's plan.

"Youth" is the subject to be stressed, and two young people from each Grange will bear the selected symbols to the next Grange in order. On Monday evening, April 8, members of Plattekill Grange will visit the Rosendale Grange and present a program planned on "Youth and Education." Offerings will be received at each meeting for the revolving scholarship fund.

A card and game party will be held at Mr. and Mrs. George

Sisti's home Tuesday evening, March 26. The local Grange will be represented at the annual county service and hospitality committee's luncheon to be held at Stone Ridge on Wednesday, March 27. Mrs. Katherine Dillenbeck of Little Falls, state chairman, will be a speaker. Rehearsals are underway for the annual three-act play, "A Small Town Romeo," to be held under the direction of the Dramatic Committee of the Grange.

Conservation Course
College Station, Tex. (AP).—Texas A. & M., encouraged by interest shown in its new department of fish and game conservation, has instituted an annual wildlife short course. ## Stage Set For Ball Here Tonight

Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman will formally open the charity ball of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Benedictine Hospital tonight in the municipal auditorium and will give the official welcome, while John M. Cashin, corporation counsel, will welcome the guests on behalf of the Ladies' Auxiliary. In a spring setting of green and forsythia yellow, dignified and artistic decorations will meet the eyes on entering the spacious ball room, converting the auditorium into a night in spring. The program of the evening will begin at 8 o'clock when Paul Purcell and his orchestra of 10 pieces will give a concert, and promptly at 9, a five-act floor show will be put on by Peter Larkin, of the Cosmo Amusement Enterprise House of New York City, which house is noted for splendid bookings selected from stars of radio, screen and stage. At 10 o'clock Paul Zucca and his ten-piece orchestra will play for general dancing, and will feature the latest numbers in dance rhythms.

As has been the custom in other years, a reception circle has been arranged where the clergy and other invited guests will be received by Mrs. George W. Moore, president of the auxiliary.

Flowers, smokes, and refreshments will be on sale throughout the evening, and with the large number of tickets sold, predicts an unusually large attendance, so that the "net results" will be a "pot of gold" for the charity work of the hospital.

Easy Exercise Routine Re-Makes Your Figure

Beware Aging Bulges and Sags
Does your figure make you look ten years older—or ten years younger than you are?

No matter how young, the woman with weak abdominal muscles may have middle-aged faults—sagging shoulders, a curved back, a protruding stomach.

But with the right exercises you can strengthen your middle muscles, and be youthfully trim and lovely, though you may have long passed forty.

Here is an exercise that works wonders for weak abdominal muscles.

1—Lie on back with arms at sides, pull both knees back to chest. 2—Stretch legs straight up in the air, lifting hips a little. 3—Lower hips, bend knees, then stretch legs out straight. Repeat 3 times. Rest. Do 9 or 10 times in all.

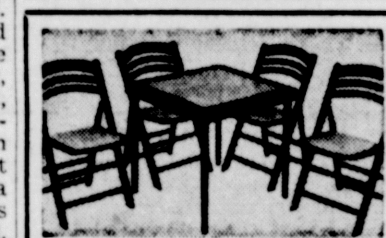

With just as simple exercises you can also lift and firm a drooping bust, slim heavy legs and thighs, and make other magical changes.

Our 32-page booklet gives exercises to correct faults of waistline, shoulders, arms, bust, hips, legs and feet. Also has exercises to correct constipation, relax tired nerves, improve posture. Has a daily routine to tone up the entire body.

Send 10c in coin for your copy of BEST EXERCISES FOR HEALTH AND BEAUTY to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth Ave., New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Good Taste Today

by Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "The Personality of a House," "The Blue Book of Social Usage," etc.)

"THE DUMP" TO OFFSET STAG LINE IS REAL HIGH-SCHOOL DANCE SOLUTION

This Suggestion Made to Girls Who Complain That Boys Do Not Even Bother to Ask Them to Go

There are no questions I like to answer better than those sent by young people. One today, from a group of high-school girls, concerns the unending problem of almost every girl who has no boyfriend upon whom she can count to take her to a dance. The present question is about the regular school dances to which not more than half of the girls are able to go because the boys thinking it too much trouble to ask the girls, go by themselves. The spokesman for the girls asks, "What do you suggest that we do? And do you know how this same situation is handled in other sections of the country?"

In the first place, making the school dances a success is certainly just as much an obligation of the girls as it is of the boys. And as a school activity, there should be no need for a boy's assistance to get to school at any time. But if there is an attitude at your school that considers it improper that the girls go by themselves or perhaps in groups together, then why not discuss this with the teachers who are your class advisers? If they agree to the suggestion, it could be announced at assembly that all the girls are expected to come whether they come with boys or not, because the school would like a full attendance.

No plan is better at the dance than for the girls to sit in groups of their own particular friends. And to make it a practice after each dance to return to their group. Offer a boy as wary about asking a girl to dance because if no one cuts in he is practically marooned with her for the whole of the evening. But the girls might devise a group of their own which practically counterbalances the stag line. Long ago this used to be called "The Dump"—this name given in affection, not in derision. It solved, as nothing ever has since, the popularity of 90 per cent (instead of 9 per cent) of the girls at dances.

In the last edition of my book, I have urged the revival of this practical solution to the clinging-vine situation because it will enable the boys to bring partners back to their friends as soon as they stop dancing, without being considered rude. This plan must of course be carried out by all the girls—as an accepted practice. The real belles of yesterday counted no small measure of their personal success in the number of stags who left their brothers standing silently in the line to sit with the jolly group in "The Dump".

How to Eat a Banana
Dear Mrs. Post: How should one eat a nice, big banana at table, when only a knife is provided for eating it?
Answer: The ordinary way—holding the outside of it in the fingers and folding back the skin part way and eating it! The knife is not used without a fork. (Repeased by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Low cost Cocoa Cup Custard

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
TESTED AND APPROVED BY THE MCCORMICK CONSUMER BOARD

4 cups cocoa 2 eggs
1 cup cornstarch 1 cup sugar
1 cup milk 1 tsp. McCormick vanilla

Mix cocoa and cornstarch and sugar to a paste with ½ cup of milk. Add well beaten eggs and vanilla. Heat remainder of milk to boiling point. Pour over cocoa paste, stir well, pour into buttered custard cups. Place in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven (350° F.) until a knife when inserted in the custard comes out clean.

NOTE:—Better ingredients mean better results with any recipe. Use McCormick's rich, pure genuine vanilla—it's "top" for the flavoring quality. Ask your grocer for McCormick tea, spices and extracts.

LEAP BEFORE YOU LOOK

By Peggy O'More

YESTERDAY: Harold has measles, and the farm is quarantined. Tomi must have the Toland tribe on her hands for two weeks of the rush season. Since this is not a "visit," the will not be affected.

Chapter 24

The Barbecue

"AUNT HANNAH!" Tomi's voice was cool and firm. It belied the inner quaking. "I am in charge of my own home. No one is going to use my office. If Austin can't sleep because the Major snores, let him stuff his ears with cotton. And I'm doing the ordering of groceries and I'm doing the cooking, and if you don't like what I prepare you can go hungry like you did at breakfast."

"Well, I must say," gasped Hannah Toland. Then, recovering, "Tomi, to your room, instantly."

Tomi almost turned and started for her room; then she held her ground.

"I'm in my room, Aunt Hannah. Every room in this house belongs to me. I'll expect each of you to respect my ownership."

Great-aunt Hannah arose and made a sweeping gesture. The family arose with her and gathered around.

"Pack again," ordered the matriarch. "We're leaving here immediately."

"No," observed a quiet voice from the hall. "I don't believe you are."

Tomi wheeled and found Allen Bartell had come quietly through the door. His face was stern, but never had Tomi seen the golden lights in his eyes dance as they did now.

"And just what is to keep us from leaving?" demanded Hannah Toland.

Bartell smiled. "The law," he explained. "Then, with a shrug of his shoulders, 'Of course, if you want me to call the wagon and have you all taken to the pest-house, I'll be glad to do it. However, I think you'll be much more comfortable here.'"

And then he seemed to swoop down from his height to touch something in the matriarch's hand. "Aunt Hannah," he cried in glad surprise, "you've started my skull-cap. Well, bless your heart, come on let's see if you have the right circumference. Abe Lincoln and I both have extra large heads."

Hannah Toland's grim features melted. There was no other word for it, thought Tomi. She watched Allen lead her to a comfortable chair and sit on a stool beside her while she held a chain of gray wool about her head.

Aware of the astounded silence, the old woman looked up. "Well," she snapped, "haven't you ever seen gray wool before? What are you staring at? Why don't you make yourselves useful? You can't expect little Tomi to do the work for the lot of you."

Tomi reached for something to support her. She found she had clutched the Major's arm, but there was no support there. It was as weak as her knees.

She looked up at him. He looked down at her and then his eyes crinkled like a small boy's. "Tomi," he whispered, "may I be the one to look after the chickens?"

Tomi retreated to her office to glory in her executive power. She felt like the man behind the scenes of a marionette show. She need only pull strings and these people who had once made her jump to their pull, must now dance for her.

But they were to dance. Tomi listed their names and made a note opposite each. Jane, whose poor old eyes were dim and red from fine needlework, would cut and arrange the flowers. Jane's most prized possession was a book of flower prints. Parilla, whom Molly was always having to run out of the kitchen because she was wanting to try out some recipe clipped from magazine or paper, would be given free rein in Tomi's kitchen.

'Protecting You'

AMANDA, who had dressed Tomi's dolls in dainty, colorful garments, but who had always looked after the Toland household accounts, would be given yards of gay material which Dotty—barred from the farm by the quarantine—would pick out and have delivered at the gate. Enough for a cheerful brock for each of the Toland girls.

Carrington, brock-beaten in-law, whose shoulders were humped and face pallid from years of desk work, would be turned loose in the vegetable garden. The dream of his life was "a little place in the country."

Austin, who had hunted flower shows, could march and spray and clip to his heart's content.

On down the list went Tomi until she came to the last name. Great-aunt Hannah. Tomi could think of nothing her aunt could do or wanted to do.

"Oh, well," she decided philosophically. "She'll be so busy grumbling she won't have time for anything else."

She laid the list aside with a sigh of satisfaction and heard her sigh echoed from the doorway. Allen stood there, face serious, eyes dancing.

"I told you, you were going to have dinner with me tonight," he observed.

Tomi laughed. "But you'll be having dinner with me, instead."

"No, the invitation still stands. I've just broadened its scope. I'm telephoning for supplies. My house is included in the quarantine. I'll give the gang a barbecue."

I have a feeling they'll get a kick out of it."

Tomi smiled, warmly. He was certainly taking the quarantine with good grace. The smile faded abruptly. Of course he was. He probably thought it had destroyed her chance of winning the farm.

Somehow Tomi had more confidence in Doctor Tillman than she had in Bartell. He had seemed to know he could have a moratorium called on the will for the duration of the quarantine.

By evening Tomi decided the only ones who were not taking the quarantine like gentlemen were Pierre and Old Abe. Pierre, reached by long-distance telephone, had nearly burned the wires with his maledictions.

"Bartell's behind this," he told Tomi. "You'll find out that doctor is a friend of his."

"I suppose you think Allen gave the measles to Harold," flashed Tomi.

"I don't know that the boy has measles. Neither do you. And if he has, why couldn't Tillman have these people moved to an isolation camp and have the house fumigated? Now answer that."

"I certainly will," Tomi flamed. "The Tolands are my family—my very own blood, and any time I run them off into an isolation camp, after they've cared for me for years—"

"Oh, cherie, cherie," implored Pierre, "don't you understand that I am only trying to protect you? Only trying to show you that you have your interest at heart? Think of the will contest. Think of the way that Toland family spoke of you on the stand and in their depositions. And Bartell—hasn't he tried to thwart you at every turn?"

"Oh, I know Pierre," Tomi sighed, "but—well it's happened. Now come on home and look after the frogs. Thank goodness Monday is a light day, but there are a dozen orders due out on the Tuesday morning trains."

Abe had listened to the news in blank silence. When he told him she would arrange sleeping quarters in the house, so Pierre could use the bunk-house, he had objected.

"I'm not sleepin' inside that house," he had stated flatly. "I'm sleepin' enough outside. I'll make me up a bed in my car."

Radiant Faces

TOMI had sold the ark to Abe for a dollar, and still believed she had cheated the old man.

The family departed for the barbecue long before Tomi was ready. Then, assured that Harold was resting, the affable nurse well-fed and content, she walked across the yard to Allen's.

What a day this had been. What did it mean? And what in the name of goodness was going on at Allen's? Tomi started to run. A long line of red heads were bobbing up and down. And that noise—it couldn't be singing?

She neared and slowed. The Tolands, each with his head tied in a red kerchief, were doing something like a chain-step. Now they had broken from each other and were doing an Indian war dance.

Tomi slowed. Such serious faces! Even Allen and Great-aunt Hannah were singing and going through the ceremony as though their lives depended upon it.

The first verse had been: "This is the way to the barbecue pit." The second was: "This is the way we build our fires." Now they were going into: "This is the way we turn the spit." And each verse was accompanied by gestures.

The song stopped abruptly at a motion from Allen. Now the family ran for the long table under the trees and began pounding on the boards with knives, singing: "This is the way we down the grub."

Tomi stood writhing in anger. It was all right for Allen Bartell to humiliate her. She could fend for herself, but to make a collection of fools of the Tolands. . . . She caught a glimpse of their faces. Why, they were radiant. She'd never seen them look as free, as gay, as altogether unconscious of themselves.

Allen and Great-aunt Hannah were quarreling over a rack of spare-ribs. Aunt Hannah's hand slipped and barbecue sauce splashed over Allen's face and shirt front. Aunt Hannah's voice lifted in a hearty laugh. Her kerchief came off so she could wipe his face. Then he insisted she must wear his.

Unnoticed, Tomi slipped in between the peacefully quiet Jane and the happy, rumbling Major. "This place is nuts," the beaming Slung told her across the table. Slung from the erudite Austin?

Dinner was soon over and still Tomi found herself ignored. Great-aunt Hannah was focusing her attention on Allen, and receding of her commanding glance, the family gambled.

Tomi found a secluded spot on the cliff and sat staring at the quiet waters, the quiet sky where a slip of a moon dipped its horns in the amber wash of sunset.

Could Allen be distracting Great-aunt Hannah to give the others a chance to play?

And why was she, Tomi, awarding him such powers of discernment?

Dotty had said that old women had their wills made over regularly, just to bask in the warmth of Allen's charm. Tomi felt a sharp pang of alarm. Great-aunt Hannah was wealthy. But, happy thought, she had no land, excepting that on which the Chicago home was built. Allen wouldn't want that. Nobody could.

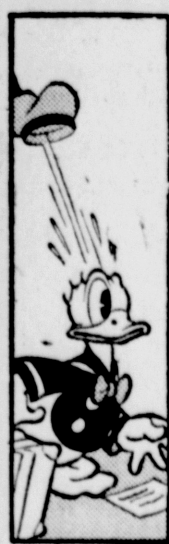

Allen found her staring moodily across the water to where the San Francisco lights twinkled like derisive eyes.

Hard Luck Is Catching

Bellville, Tex. (AP)—W. E. Thomas, ambulance attendant, was sitting beside a patient in an ambulance speeding to a hospital. The door rolled open and Thomas rolled out. He bounced along the highway for about 40 feet, rolled over a culvert into a ditch, suffered a broken jaw and lost many teeth. He was helped back into the ambulance and rushed to the hospital with the original patient.

When you're forming your opinions do it carefully—then go slow!

Hasty judgments oft are followed by regretting—that I know.

And in argument be careful not too quickly to decide—

Try to look upon the subject from the other fellow's side.

Ah, if we would use but caution, and a little less of self;

Think a little more of kindness, and a little less of pelf;

Try to help the other fellow, not to hurt him, don't you see?

How much fairer, brighter, better this old world of ours would be?

Keep the path your mind would travel broad and open all the way.

Walk with Wisdom's comrade, Caution, heedful all he has to say.

And no matter what arises, are against it you have cried,

Try to look upon the subject from the other fellow's side.

Tell this to the children: Cyrus—Yes, I came face to face with a lion once. To make matters worse, I was alone and weaponless—

Ward—Goodness! What did you do?

Cyrus—What could I do? First, I tried looking straight into his eyeballs, but he kept crawling toward me. Then I thought of plunging my arm down his throat, grabbing him by the tail and turning him inside out, but I decided it would be too dangerous. Yet, he kept creeping towards me; I had to think fast—

Ward—How did you get away?

Cyrus—I just left him and passed on to the other cage.

Getting cross hampers you in putting things across.

Two little urchins stood with their noses pressed against a barber shop window:

First Urchin (pointing to a barber wielding a singeing taper)—

Gee, Mickey, look at that one! He's looking for 'em with a light!

Restaurant Manager (as he sampled new cook's first soup)—You say you served in France?

New Cook—Yes, sir. Cook for two years and wounded twice.

Restaurant Manager—You're a lucky man. It's a wonder they didn't kill you.

If only some women could be induced to devote themselves as assiduously to the darning of socks as they do to the manufacture of them for the Red Cross, how happy their husbands would be.

Tact, after all, is merely thinking of the point of view of others, considering others and saving the feelings of others.

Lord Blank (on the telephone)—Hello! Please reserve a box for two for tomorrow night.

Voice—Very sorry, we only do boxes for one.

Lord Blank—What do you mean? Aren't you the Grand Theatre?

Voice—No, I'm Smith, the undertaker.

A Fine Quartet

A little bit of quality will always make 'em smile;

A little bit of courtesy will bring 'em back a mile;

A little bit of friendliness will 'tickle 'em 'tis plain—

And a little bit of service will bring 'em back again.

First Golfer—Shall we play again next Saturday?

Second Golfer—Well, I was going to get married on Saturday, but I can put it off.

Forest Rangers Meeting Today at Governor Clinton

Forest Rangers and Observers from this district of the state division of lands and forests, which has charge of the forestry work in the state and administers the State Forest Preserve, held a closed meeting at the Governor Clinton Hotel today, between 35 and 40 men attending.

The state department was represented at the meeting by William G. Howard, director of lands and forests and Kinne F. Williams, superintendent of forest fire control.

S. J. Hyde of Middletown, chief district ranger, was present, with the following district rangers: L. B. Furch, Fleischmanns; C. N. Traver, Troy; H. A. Williams, Oneonta; C. E. Dare, Selden, L. I.; Elroy Reagan (acting district ranger), Middletown; H. F. Hedgecock, Poughkeepsie.

The district being represented today runs from Long Island north to include Washington and Saratoga counties. It comprises the territory east of the Hudson, the Catskill area, the territory south and southwest of the Catskills and Long Island.

Discussions included various phases of forestry work, more particularly as concerns methods of fighting forest fires and their control, with some attention given to gypsy moths and other insect pests. The latter occupied a minor place on the day's program, the discussion being designed to give the rangers more information regarding the habits and appearance of insect pests infesting the forests, so that they may be recognized and steps taken toward their control or eradication.

Religious School To Be Held in City

Kingston's Council of Christian Education will again sponsor a religious school on the five Monday evenings during April, with sessions held in the Kingston High School. This school is held annually for the benefit of church school workers and others interested in the subjects included in the courses.

Those who plan to attend the sessions of the school are required to register at the high school on Monday evening, April 1, at 6:30 o'clock.

The following courses will be given:

How to Administer the Sunday School, Instructor, Superintendent of Schools Arthur J. Laidlaw.

Guiding Youth's Approach to Religion, Instructor, the Rev. Russell Damstra of the Reformed Church of the Comforter.

The New Testament: Its Content and Values, Instructor, the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool, pastor of the First Dutch Church.

The Church Through the Ages, Instructor, the Rev. D. Linton Doherty, pastor of the Rondout Presbyterian Church.

Three Cars Taken Found Abandoned

During the past week three automobiles which had been stolen in Kingston were found abandoned several hours after the police had been notified of the thefts. In all three cases the cars were reported as undamaged.

Early Sunday morning Mrs. Florence Wilburn of "Meadowside," Saugerties, reported that she had parked her automobile in front of the Governor Clinton Hotel, and that when she went to get the car it was gone. Officers Edward Leonard and Sammons a few hours later found the auto abandoned in a vacant lot off Burgevin street.

Thursday night the car of Joseph Levine of 302 Hasbrouck avenue was stolen from Grand View avenue, and found later near Huling's Barn, while Friday night the car of Thomas Plunkett of 183 Pearl street was found abandoned on Warren street.

Goes Straight

Elliot P. Clark, for three years a special policeman in Groton, Mass., and said by his police chief to have been an exemplary citizen, is shown awaiting word from Gov. Saltonstall on a requested pardon for a drug store burglary nine years ago. Clarke served 15 months for the crime, then determined to live it down. But townspeople learned of it and forced his resignation. Other townspeople petitioned the governor for him so he could be reinstated.

NEW PALTZ

A food sale will be held in the store of George Oates at 2 o'clock Friday, March 29. Most of the food will be made by the 4-H Club members.

Mrs. Georgia Lillberg and daughter, Edith, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Elliott at Plutarch Sunday night.

Mrs. Taylor of Orchard Heights is entertaining her mother, Mrs. Fisher, of Albany.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Keith Smiley, Jr., are visiting Mrs. Daniel Smiley and Mrs. Ruth Smiley Drake in Redlands, Calif.

The American Legion Auxiliary met Monday evening and celebrated their annual birthday with the Legion at the close of the business session. A game party will be held in the Legion hall Monday evening, April 1. Mrs. Harry Zimmerman heads the committee with Mrs. Edwin Curtis, Mrs. Elting Clearwater and Mrs. Winkelman serving. Refreshments will be in charge of Mrs. Ackert and Mrs. Van Luvén. It was reported that the auxiliary has 51 members and received a national citation for membership. A hand-knit shoulderette was sent to a nurse, who is a patient at Castle Point Veterans' Hospital. It was voted to buy $2 worth of Veterans' Mountain Camp stamps. A group from the auxiliary visited Castle Point Hospital on Sunday.

At the close of the meeting the members of the Post prepared and served the birthday dinner which included a large birthday cake presented by Mrs. Thomas Jensen in memory of her husband.

General Foote Dies

New York, March 25 (AP)—Brig. Gen. John H. Foote, 73, retired, who served for 32 years in the New York State National Guard, died yesterday of a heart ailment at a Brooklyn hospital. Foote commanded the 14th Regiment from Brooklyn in the Mexican border campaign of 1916. In 1917 he was given command of the second brigade, New York National Guard.

Return Engagement

Detroit (AP)—Signing of Gonsaga University for a football game with Detroit next fall is of special interest to the University of Detroit's athletic director, Charles E. (Gus) Dorais. The teams last met when Dorais was directing athletics for the West Coast school. The game next fall will be played November 16.

Studebaker Test Car Visits City

Saturday, one of the new Studebaker Champion test cars visited Kingston to give local residents a chance to drive this new economical car and compete for one of the prizes offered by the company. The person able to make the most mileage on one gallon of gasoline. Herbert J. Swarthout, Jr., of 60 Brewster street, tried the club sedan Saturday and was able to travel to just this side of Accord and back with the single gallon, a distance of 29.2 miles. The day before on a visit to Spring Glen, N. Y., C. Raymond Gray, a resident of that village, traveled a distance of 33 miles. In the above picture, checking the mileage and recording the run are: Left to right, Joseph Swanson, district sales manager of the New York Branch; Herbert Swarthout, A. F. Doyle, local dealer for Studebaker, and Jack Larkin of the sales department.

Two Boys Escape Serious Injuries

Two young boys had narrow escapes from serious injuries when struck by automobiles in Kingston on Easter Sunday according to reports made to the police department that day.

Billy Lawrence, 7, of 581 Broadway, was struck by a car driven by Clyde LeFevre of Port Richmond, S. I., about 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon on Cedar street. He was taken to the Kingston Hospital and treated for a cut over the right eye. Mr. LeFevre said the boy ran out from behind another car and was struck by the license plate on his car.

Frederick Dietz of Mt. Marion reported to the police that Sunday afternoon a boy named Frank Humphrey, 8, of 92 Broadway, ran into the street from the curb in front of the Orpheum Theatre and was struck by the fender of the car. Mr. Dietz said the boy apparently was unhurt.

Public Hearings On Pension Bills

Tuesday afternoon Mayor C. J. Heiselman will hold public hearings on the two local pension bills adopted by the common council which make drastic changes in the pension laws of the police and fire departments of Kingston. The hearing on the police pension bill is slated for 2 o'clock that afternoon in the council chambers on the third floor of the city hall, with a hearing on the fire pension bill at 4 o'clock.

It is expected that opposition to the signing of the bills will develop at the hearings.
